GENERAL INFORMATION

Alistair Hinton was born in Scotland. Hearing John Ogdon playing Chopin's 4th Ballade on the radio at the age of 11 gave rise to the altogether understandable wish to become a composer; ("I just wanted to know how music was made – and to make some of my own"). His first Sonata for piano appeared shortly afterwards; it displays some facility in its assimilation of fleetingly encountered influences. He continued his musical studies simply by studying music, passionately ("one learns composition by composing, as one learns wine-tasting by tasting wine"). His early work attracted the interest of Benjamin Britten, with whose help he attended Royal College of Music, London for lessons with Humphrey Searle and Stephen Savage. His works date from 1962 but he destroyed much of his pre-1985 output.

A significant encouragement of his compositional development was provided by the music, literature and friendship of Parsi composer Sorabji, which played an important rôle in exposing him to crucial formative influences, including Szymanowski, Busoni, van Dieren, Medtner, Godowsky and Stevenson; these, together with a deepening admiration for Chopin, were to enhance his love of the piano and preoccupation with the challenge of writing for it.

Having persuaded Sorabji in 1976 of the wisdom of relaxing the long-standing embargo on public performance of his music, he took an active part in fostering international interest in it. This led to his founding The Sorabji Music Archive, of which he is curator. Based in Bath, England, the organisation was renamed The Sorabji Archive in 1993 and relocated to Hereford in 2008. It is a research source for performers and scholars, maintains a continuously expanding collection of literature by and about the composer, assists and oversees the compilation of new authentic editions and issues copies of his scores and writings to the public.

He has published articles and reviews in journals including Tempo, The Organ, International Piano Quarterly, The Godowsky Society Newsletter and The Ronald Stevenson Society Newsletter, acted as executive producer of various recordings and contributed to radio and television productions in several countries including USA, Scotland, Netherlands and England. The author of two chapters of the book Sorabji: A Critical Celebration, ed. Paul Rapoport (Scolar Press, UK, 1992, repr. 1994), he also contributed substantial valuable research material to it; he has since assisted another of its contributors, Marc-André Roberge, towards his substantial biographical study of Sorabji that was published in 2013.

His extant output includes pieces for orchestra with and without soloists, songs, chamber music, organ works and a substantial collection of piano music. His Pansophiæ for John Ogdon, for organ, commissioned in 1990 in memory of the great pianist with whom he collaborated on his legendary recording of Sorabji's Opus Clavicembalisticum, was first heard in 1991 in a recital devised and given in Ogdon's honour by Kevin Bowyer and was later recorded by him in the Church of St. Mary Redcliffe, Bristol.

In 1993 he received four commissions, of which the last, Variations for Piano and Orchestra, was completed in February 1996. More recent works include Szymanowski-Etюд, for wind ensemble (1996), Sinfonietta (1997) and a cadenza for Medtner's Piano Concerto No. 3 (1998) commissioned for that concerto's Italian première. In 1999 he concentrated principally on chamber music. His Six Songs, Op. 40 were commissioned by the Planet Tree Festival 2000 for the soprano Sarah Leonard. He later completed a commission for a series of piano pieces – Sieben Charakterstücke – as well as a wind ensemble work, Concerto for 22 Instruments and a large-scale Piano Quintet begun in 1980 but only resumed more than a quarter of a century later.

His Variations and Fugue on a theme of Grieg, for piano, the organ piece Pansophiæ for John Ogdon and his most ambitious work to date, the String Quintet, have been released on the prestigious Altarus label to considerable critical acclaim.

The 3-CD recording of his String Quintet was broadcast complete in USA in January 2003 and repeated later that year by popular demand; its UK broadcast première was given as part of BBC Radio 3's 2005 British Music Focus series.

Artists who have to date performed, broadcast and recorded his work include pianists Donna Amato, Ian Brown, Carlo Grante, Jørgen Hald Nielsen, Jonathan Powell, Yonty Solomon, Ronald Stevenson and Nicola Ventrella sopranos Sarah Leonard and Jane Manning and organist Kevin Bowyer. The artists in the String Quintet recording are Jagdish Mistry and Marcus Barcham-Stevens (violins), Levine Andrade (viola), Michael Stirling (cello) and Corrado Canonici (double bass), with Sarah Leonard (soprano).

All enquiries concerning ALISTAIR HINTON are welcome.

Supply format and item description

- All items, including computer-set editions and autograph manuscripts, are issued on paper as duplex (double-sided) photocopies, enlarged where practicable to aid legibility and ring-bound in hard card covers unless otherwise specified or requested; alternatively, all items may be supplied electronically in .pdf format.

Editions

- Editions other than those shown as "Publication" are either typeset or in the editor's hand, described as "Ed." and duly credited.

Copy quality

- Master copies of all items supplied in paper form have been prepared by The Sorabji Archive from original autograph manuscripts and editions; some early manuscripts were in poor condition at the time these were made.
- All paper copies supplied are prepared in-house to order. Copy quality is the highest achievable from the originals using the archive's analogue monochrome photocopier which, whilst it served us well over the years, has since been replaced with an equivalent digital copier upon which all paper copies are made for distribution.

A guide to the catalogue

- The Date column gives the year of completion of each work or the years in which it was composed or revised.
- The No. column shows the composer's work numberings.
- The Dedicatee column shows the names of dedicatees where applicable and known.
- Durations are given in minutes; those of works yet to be performed are allotted estimates in the form "c.[xxx']".
- The Pages column shows the number of pages in each item and indicates how their prices are calculated.

- The Format column gives paper size / orientation: P = Portrait and L = Landscape.
- The Edition column gives descriptions of the publication format of each item. All items without such a description are copies of the composer's autograph manuscripts. The designation "Ms." likewise refers to autograph manuscripts but appears only in instances where other edition formats of the same work are also available.
- The Price (paper) column shows the amount in £ sterling (GBP) payable for each item including packing and ordinary mailing within UK only; prices remain valid until further notice. Surcharges for guaranteed, express or other special mailing / shipping services and for all orders to be shipped outside UK are quoted on request. In the interests of our valued customers we no longer ship items by sea mail due to adverse past experience; it may in some cases appear somewhat more economical, but we have also found it to be very unreliable. Most of our prices have remained unchanged since the Archive's foundation, despite increases in costs of materials and shipping.
- The Price (.pdf) column shows the amount in £ sterling (GBP) payable for each item as an uploaded .pdf file.

Files in .pdf format

We have been offering material in this format, either as attachments to emails or via file transfer software such as WeTransfer since June 2012. The advantage of these, for those who prefer them, is that they are much cheaper than paper copies and can be sent very promptly, whereas paper copies are subject to shipping costs and can take days to arrive.

It has come to our attention that some enquirers have difficulty in receiving very large files this way; this appears to be down to the recipient's operating system and the default .pdf software that comes with it. Whereas Microsoft™ Windows® users have Adobe Reader as the default .pdf programme and this seems not to give rise to any file receiving problems, users of other operating systems that do not come with Adobe Reader as default software may encounter problems. The easy solution is to visit <http://get.adobe.com/uk/reader/> and download Adobe Reader, which is free software.

Reproduction by any means of all or any part or parts of all musical and literary works printed or otherwise by Alistair Hinton and its sale hire or distribution except by prior written consent of Alistair Hinton or his authorised agents or suppliers shall constitute infringement of copyright and is therefore unlawful

This catalogue is regularly updated to incorporate new and newly completed editions, recently discovered works (if any) and other new information. Please refer to copyright date when comparing earlier issues.
